

An Analysis of the six actions
by Jada Mandor ve'ada

The Resol'nare, or Six actions in were and are central tenets of the lives of many who are Mandalorians that live as a result of a cultural birth. from a shared cultural experience the ideals that are formed from the ideals of planet earth, in the end of the twentieth century and beginning of the twenty first. the original tenants were popularized by its initial appearance under the IP Star Wars and was acquired by other corporations. It was then used as a media tool to distract from the continual decline of the economic crisis with a cultural war-front proxy. However the communities that formed as a result of the tenets proved to be as if not more resilient.

In the Star Wars IP the Mando'a title Resol'nare translated to "Galactic Basic Standard" which was one to one with English means Five Actions according to the cannon, by cannon meaning the intellectual property and the fact that the corporations would seek to use any means to quell rebellion within their "customer base".

The Resol'nare of star wars cannon are as follows according to

The Resol'nare, or Six Actions when translated from Mando'a into Galactic Basic Standard, were the central tenets of Mandalorian life. They consisted of wearing armor, speaking the language, defending oneself and family, raising your children as Mandalorians, contributing to the clan's welfare, and when called upon by the Mand'alor, rallying to their cause.[2]

Tradition dictated that anyone who wished to be considered Mandalorian were to abide by these guidelines and live these actions daily. Mandalorians whom did not follow the Resol'nare were considered to be dar'manda—someone who was ignorant of their Mandalorian heritage and bereft of their Mandalorian soul. The status of dar'manda was widely feared within Mandalorian society due to the belief it meant they were soulless and had no place in the Manda, the Mandalorian afterlife.[2] Before and during the Mandalorian Wars, any and all non-Mandalorians were considered dar'manda and soulless from birth, until they joined the Mandalorians and lived by the Resol'nare. Groups of captured individuals would often be forcibly inducted into Mandalorian culture, and made to swear by the Resol'nare with or without their consent under the threat of death.[3] Such zealotry faded over time as the Mandalorians became a less religious and more secular society.[2]

Young Mandalorian children were taught a rhyme to help them learn the tenets of the Resol'nare, and their parents would explain the cultural significance of each tenet as they grew.[4]

I am one of the Mandalorians who have looked over the tenets proposed in the IP Star Wars and now put forward my religious and personal faith based interpretation of the same degree, in no way can a corporation claim religious tenets as wholly their intellectual property.

The Six Actions Interpretation by Jada Mandor Ve'ada

Six actions. Wear Armor, Speak Mando'a, Defend oneself and family, Raise your children as Mandalorians, contribute to the clans welfare, and when called upon by the Mand'alor, rallying to their cause. It is my view that all religions have these actions in spirit if not with physical representations, although the practices vary. The armor and protective artifacts of faiths have been incalculable and common since humanity first found sapience. Catholics use Latin, Islam has Arabic, and in others they simply use the language most spoken by the community. Protection of oneself and family has always been another constant albeit disregarding in many cases for the free will of women and children. An example of which being Deuteronomy 22:28-29 "If a man finds a young woman who is a virgin, who is not betrothed, and he seizes her and lies with her, and they are found out, then the man who lay with her shall give to the young woman's father fifty shekels of silver, and she shall be his wife because he has humbled her; he shall not be permitted to divorce her all his days." (NKJV). This is where I must reject and state that passages like this violates defending oneself and family where the fact that they are a virgin and has no husband to protect them, that they are to be sold to their rapist and not permitted to leave that union, shackled to a known oppressor. Any parent who allows as such to transpire have first failed to protect oneself and family, second did not raise their children as Mandalorians in which they can hold their line, not one step back, third degraded further the clans welfare by allowing the separation of the united soul of the family so they suffer a fate worse than loosing ones soul.

Wearing armor, the first piece of armor a person should equip should be the love of yourself, the love of your family and your duty as such to defend them, all armor has weight and the weight of the armor of love is your responsibility to return the love in kind so your vode are also protected. No insult can pierce the hide and no beating of the body by weapons of material or word can break the soul wrapped in the warmth and strength of all of the hearts of Mandalore. The second piece is the helm one is under, whether its a helmet of steel upon ones head in battle or the helm of the ships wheel, her Captain and the ships articles that makes all equal. The third is ones mind, both shield and sword, one must know themselves and never leave it empty or full, for if you are empty of mind you have no weapons to strike, nor shields to defend. If your mind is full, you are over encumbered and find that you have no more you can gather collapsing under the weight. Travel light but not defenseless in mind and store your weapons of material and word to only take what is needed, perhaps your kin may also need to borrow your weapons of wisdom, metal and fire when the call is made.

Speaking Mando'a, the words we speak aren't some merchants dialect or the demands to be subservient by galactic powers and politics, to be monitored, censored and deemed heretical. The call off greed to use these words as a source of profit is better left to the gilded gold words of English. We are children of Mandalore and our words are for our vode to hear and our encouragement and love to hold the line. The enemy's that know our words will receive no rest from our insult for they steal our tongue to try and pierce our first piece of armor, the words of love from kin. Those who wish to speak will learn but are also to listen, If one does not listen, they cannot receive the weapons and shields of wisdom and love lent to them in their time of need. If one only listens, they are not returning the love given in kind. If one only speaks they empty everything onto others leaving none in ones self if not returned.

Defend oneself and family, provide the armor of wisdom, word and or material and remind all of that which unites all under the helm. Family is more than blood and we take no steps back on that conviction, any who says otherwise are not Vode, they are the Enemy, the enemy only exists to grow, change and learn to be vode, if they knew that they would not be such. Those who say family is only blood spill their own on the ground and that of their kin and do not defend the family beyond blood and soil and is not the way.

Raise your children as Mandalorians, all children have sapience and agency, but they have only their soul at the start, like a vessel out of dry dock they crash into the waters of life with a launch in a safe harbor. They see the open ocean and they desire more than the shallows and reefs of safety, they are Mandalorians and as such see the challenge unmet and if not guided will voyage before they are ready. First give them their armor of love and Second place them under your helm for they are equal in soul if not in time. Third is to give the wisdom of the dangers beyond harbor, that one must not be alone on a voyage and all hands must pull together when the gale is upon the sky. Give them the words of love and fill their mind with what they need and provide the ones they wish for themselves when asked. As they grow show them how to hone their weapons well, and to not harm unless harmed for a Mandalorian never strikes first but does strike last.

Contribute to clans welfare, after communication and defense of ones body, spirit and family, is that of the clan as we prepare for the call. Nutritional necessity both food and water is addressed as top of the welfare, the next shall be the overall defense. The third as consideration is the seeking of other Vode as no family member is to be left abandoned and all Vode are family, Family is more than blood. Earth through its core of molten iron and nickel protected our biosphere of Manda with the field generated and shows its love and protects us as the Aurora of colors were rebuffed by our mothers shield and thus protected her children and as Earth children we recognize the safe harbor our parent brought us in, and the stars are the sea.

Rallying to the Mandalore, in times of great need when the clans are scattered one will be called upon to lead, the burden of such should not be taken out of the desire of power and control and domination of others, but is given only one weapon deemed as just in order to unite the clans under a single helm. Upon a dream I asked the armorer "by what weapon shall the enemy's be turned to be family" the hammer steady the forge was lit and after a time it was brought before me. "the weapon I give to unite the clans as one" a pen was placed at my knees "Many have asked for such and I have given many weapons for the same, all failed. They put the pen down and draw their sword and thus fell for they did not wield the weapon I had given" I ask "but how do I defend with a pen, how does this show I have the strength to lead?" there is no answer, only the hammer on my chest with steady blows I awoke.
